A Solid Education Builds Toward Effective Care

"With years of experience in physical therapy, knowing how to treat a patient has become almost instinctual to me. But it took many years of training and hard work to be able to give the high quality of care I provide my patients on a daily basis. To me, there's nothing as important as my patients' overall health and fitness."

BS: Physical Therapy, Northeastern University, Boston, MA

Specialist: Certified Strength and Conditioning Specialist, USA Weight Lifting Level 1 Club Coach

Sharing His Knowledge with Others

"Our knowledge of how the various elements of the body interact is continually being expanded. Because of that, physical therapy is always evolving. I enjoy sharing my experience with colleagues and gaining their insight. It's just one more way to expand the care I offer patients."

Lecturer, Sports Medicine Conferences

Contributing to Athletes at All Levels

"Helping athletes overcome their injuries is very inspirational. They are always the most motivated to help themselves and get back in the game quickly, because they love their sports. They also prove that recovery is faster when both the patient and therapist are motivated for the same goal."
